In the rear of the Institute, at the distance of one hundred feet, are three other cottages, some sighty feet apart. One of these is the laundry, with a hydrant at the door; the other two are occupied by the servants.

The hydrant water is introduced into these cottages as well as into the main building, and all the waste water carried off by drains under ground.

Consist of a circular stone building, standing on the brow of a hill, surmounted by a large codar reservoir containing five hundred barrels, brought from a never-failing spring of pure cold water in the side of the hill, by "a hydraulic ram," a self-acting machine of cast iron, that is kept constantly going, night and day, by the descent of the water from the spring. The surplus water is carried from the reservoir to a fountain in the water-works yard, surrounded by weeping willows. In the first story of the water-works is a circular room, containing the douche bath, which is a stream falling from a height of about thirty feet, and can be varied in size from half an inch to an inch and a half in diameter. Adjoining the douche room is a dressing room, with marble tables, &c. the rising denche (for the cure of piles, &c.) is one of the most complete contrivances of the kind, being entirely under the ontrol of the patient using the same There are many other appliances, which can be better understood by a personal examination. mar 24—

To Persons out of Employment. NEW PICTORIAL WORKS, Just published by R. SEARS, and for sale at No. 128 Nassau street, New York.

A MERICAN GIFT BOOKS FOR 1851.—Agents are wanted to circulate the following new and beautiful works, (retail price, $2 50 per vol.) A new and complete PICTORIAL HISTORY OF CHINA AND INDIA;

PICTORIAL HISTORY OF CHINA AND INDIA; with a descriptive account of those countries and their inhabitants, from the earliest period of authentic history to the present time. In which the editor has treated not only of the historical events, but also of the manners, customs, religion, literature, and domestic habits of the people of those immense empires.

The embellishments are about two hunded, and of the first order, illustrating whatever is peculiar to the inhabitants, regarding their dress, domestic occupations, their mode of agriculture, commercial pursuits, arts, &c. They are accurate, and each one has been made expressly for the work.

are accurate, and each one has been made expressly to the work. The volume forms a large octavo, containing between five and six hundred pages, printed in the best style, and on good substantial white paper. It is furnished to agents, handsomely bound in muslin, glit, or leather, as the pur-chaser may prefer, at a very liberal discount, when quan-tities of not less than twenty copies are ordered at one time.

THRILLING INCIDENTS OF THE WARS OF THE UNITED STATES;

comprising the most striking and remarkable events of the Revolution, the French war, the Tripolitan war, the Indian war, the second war with Great Britain, and the Mexican war; with three hundred engravings! Retail price, $2.50 per volume. Orders respectfully solicited.

Mexican war; with three hundred engravings! Retail price, $2 50 per volume. Orders respectfully solicited.

SEARS' PICTORIAL FAMILY PUBLICATIONS are decidedly the best books that agents can possibly employ their time in supplying to the people of the United States. They are valuable for reference, and should be possessed by every family in this great republic. There is not a city or town in these United States, not even those of small importance, but contains many citizens to whom these works are indispensable. They are adapted to the literary wants of the Christian, the patriot, the statesman, and the domestic circle, got up in a superior style of art and workmanship; and are not only such books as will sell, but are such as an agent of good principle will feel free to recommend, and willing to see the purchaser again after they have been bought.

Our Plan—The plan the publisher has so successfully carried out for several years, is the obtaining responsible men as agents, who are well known in their own counties, towns, and villages, and have time and disposition to circulate good and instructive books among their neighbors and friends. Any person wishing to embark in the enterprise will risk little in sending $25 or $50, for which he will receive an assortment as he may direct, at the wholesale cash prices.

Enterprising and active men of respectability and good address, would do well to energe in the sale of the above

Office, No. 1 Reade Street, New York.

In consequence of the great number of complaints which have for a long time been made by Emigrants, of frauds committed upon them in the sending of money to their friends in Irehand, and to aid and protect the Emigrant, the Irish Emigrant Society established a fund, deposited in the Bank of Irehand, upon which they draw drafts, payable at sight, at any of the branches of the Bank.

Persons residing out of the city, by enclosing in a letter the sum they wish forwarded, with the plainly written direction to whom and where it is to be paid, will have the same remitted.

There is a great advantage in purchasing the Society's drafts—that the Bank has a branch in each of the principal towns in Ireland, and thus the losses by discount, and otherwise, are avoided.

The Society keeps an office at No. 22 Spruce street, to which Emigrants can apply to obtain situations for which they are fitted.

HOW PHILIP CLAYTON PUT HIS MONEY

OUT AT INTEREST. BY GEORGIANA C. MUNRO.

"I shall be very happy—won't you? when we have a little money laid by," remarked Philip Clayton's pretty wife, as she poured out tea for him in their cheerful little parlor. through whose open window stole the soft breath of summer, laden with the fragrance of the sweet-briar that fringed the grass-plot, and the honey-suckle that draperied the rustic

"I am very happy now," replied Clayton smiling, as he glanced from the fair face that looked on him to the laughing boy who was romping with a spaniel on the grass.

"Well, and so am I," said Mrs. Clayton, smiling also; it would have been strange if she was not happy, with a husband who loved her devotedly, and no sorrow or danger glooming on the sunny horizon of her life. "But you know what I mean—it will be a great comfort and satisfaction when we are able to lay up something as a provision for the future think what a pleasure it will be to find the interest coming in at once to help us."

"No, no!" laughed Clayton; "to carry ou the thing properly we must not spend the interest, but lay that up also to accumulate into a large fortune by the time we are three or four-score years old. But come, Hetty, let us not concern ourselves so much about a future that may never come. If it does come, God will, I trust, enable us to provide for it; but the blessings of the present are ours to enjoy and be thankful for. So give me another cup, and then let me hear that song you sung me yesterday; it has been echoing in my ears all day and every line I wrote seemed to be accomme dating itself to the tune."

So the song was sung, and others followed, drawing the child dancing in from his gambols to hear the music, and the evening passed pleasantly as it was wont to do, making Mrs. Clay-ton forget, in the happiness of the present, her anxiety for the future.

Years passed by, and found and left as great and yet greater happiness at the little flowerwreathed cottage; for other childish voices made its walls resound with merriment, and not one blessing had been recalled, to leave a shadow on remembrance. And, moreover, the cherished wish of Henrietta seemed on the point of being realized; for the first hundred pounds were very nearly amassed by their care and frugality, out of Philip's salary from the bank-ing-house where he was a clerk; and already his over-anxious wife reckoned the five pe cent. interest in those days given, as the small yet welcome addition to their income which should enable the second hundred to be more quickly collected. Even Philip knew not how great a hold the desire of providing against contingencies had on the mind of his pretty and amiable Henrietta. His own nature was generous and hopeful; and, beyond doing every thing for the best, he did not much ponder ever what might be the freight and fortunes of the coming years, cheer-fully trusting that if they brought him misfortune, they would bring him the means and the strength to struggle against it, or endure. He had at the outset insured his life, which cured some provision for his family, should he be taken from them, and he saw no cause for doubt that his exertions would maintain them comfortably while he lived; and pleasant were his thoughts, as evening after evening he walked a mile through the quiet lanes, where the trees met and the birds sang sweetly above his head, to the little village where he dwelt among scenes so different from the large town where his occupation lay. On the other side of the clear spring which whose inmates had known far less of prosperity than was the portion of the Claytons. Yet there had come a brightness over their prospects; and after many misfortunes, Richard Allen thought that the clouds had passed at length, and the long-delayed sunshine was gleaming forth; for a situation as manager of a brewery promised him not merely a competence, but the means of setting his son, a fine boy of fifteen, forward in the world. He had been but six months in his situation, and twice that time in the neighborhood where he was of course but little known though that little was calculated to win respect and of all, Clayton perhaps knew and liked hin

One evening they were leaning over the bridge that spanned the stream, watching Frank Allen as he altered, and worked at, and launched, and guided on its course the little boat which Harry Clayton-six years his junior-was unable t make sail down the stream; and they smiled to see how the child clapped his hands with delight, and how pleased Frank was to aid the ignorance and awkwardness of his little com-

"Strange," said Allen, "that as men we should lose the feelings which seem inherent in us in childhood and in boyhood. In those years our first impulse is to help those who are weaker or more inexperienced than ourselves. But as time passes, those feelings die away and are forgotten; and how seldom is it that we find nen pleased and eager to extend a helping hand to those who are less fortunate than themselves! How much more frequently do they appear to exult in their advantages all the more that others are without them! And if they do aid a feeble brother, is it not usually done coldly and reluctantly, as an acknowledged but dis agreeable duty, instead of with the pleasure and alacrity which characterized our boyhood's exertions to help those who needed?"

"There are exceptions," replied Clayton and I would wish to think they are numerous." "So would I," said Allen, "and they ought to be numerous; for surely every hour of our lives shows us more and more how dependent men are on their fellow-creatures, in some shape or another; it seems designed to teach us mutual kindness, charity and forbearance; but the lesson is too often unheeded, and some times read backwards to serve a different end. But don't think me a grumbler or a misanthrope because I say this. I know there is much good in the world; but I cannot help saying that there might be, and ought to be, much

"I suspect we need only look into our own hearts to own the truth of that," said Clayton. smiling. "But here comes Mrs. Allen, and I know my good little housewife has been impatiently waiting for us this hour past."

And so she had been; for with all her prudence and frugality, Mrs. Clayton was very proud of her cakes and her preserves, and the Altage; and often in after days Henrietta would attack of the sickness.

She and Philip stood at the door until their friends crossed the little bridge homewards: they watched the crescent moon sink behind the distant hills, and then, closing the door upon the dimmer light which gleamed in starry rays on bough and stream, there soon was rest and si-at might have been two hours after when the loud barking of a dog awakened Clayton. His first idea was that it was broad daylight, so bright a light was shining through the window.

But in another moment be well-as a standard for the legislature st But in another moment he was conscious tha the glow was redder than that of the reddest morning. And springing to the window he saw flames bursting from the Allens' house.

Clayton hurried to the spot. A crowd was seginning to gather around the house, but its inmates still slept. Efforts were made to arouse them to a knowledge of their danger, which became every instant more imminent, so rapidly the flames spread and strengthened, and the door was forced open at the same moment that a wild shrick rose from within ; but suffocating smoke rolled through the doorway, and flamedarted their forked tongues round the staircase, and nobody dared to enter.

ABBY FOLSOM. It appears that some of the preachers of Boston, on Sunday last, made Symmes, the fugi-tive, the subject for their comments from the pulpit. At the Rev. Theodore Parker's church Abby Folsom, after listening to the discourse, arose in her place, near the centre of the house, and in a clear and distinct voice and animated manner delivered the following discourse : A few years since, I, Abby Folsom, was kidnapped on Boston Common, and incarcerated in Leverett street jail, for addressing the public mind upon slavery, intemperance, pauperism, and their kindred vices. Yes, imprisoned in Leverett street jail for freedom of speech, in a free land; yet no notes were sent to the clergymen of Boston to pray for my deliverance; no prayers were offered up in the churches for me, a poor kidnapped woman, hunted on Boston Common by the bloodhounds of the law, and dragged to Leverett street jail. No; Mr. Parker, with all his zeal for the oppressed and down-trodden of earth, offered no prayer for me. Henceforward I am opposed to all law, to all organizations of men, whether it be the old or-ganization [meaning the Garrisonian] or the new. I go against all combinations of men, all meetings of men or women when they are organized with a Chairman and Secretary. They are bad; and their tendency is to oppose and destroy the freedom of speech. A few years since a harmless old man, whose white beard and snowy locks denoted a long life of toil, and whose brilliant eye was and is the harbinger of genius, was arrested by the myrmidons of the law, and carried to a lunatic asylum. He was there surrounded by the chains of oppression, and kept from the light of day and the free use of the organs which God had endowed him with. All this, I say, was done to this inoffensive old man because h was in favor of the freedom of speech, and sold a scythe-snathe, of his own invention, which was not so crooked as the minds of those cruel men who placed him in bondage. I am opposed to all such acts of violence and perdition. [At this moment a young lady with a charming smile said to Abby, "Madam, I wish you would stop speaking; I am afraid you will injure Mr. Parker and his religious influence in this city. Whereupon, Abby repeated to the audience what the pretty lady had said, and then, raising her Folsom, injure my brother Parker? though he did not pray for me when I was in trouble, I respect him, and will not hurt the few remaining hairs in his classic and benevolent head." [Quite a sensation.]

STANDING ARMIES. At the present time, although peace prevails in Europe, the military organizations of most of the great Powers are upon the war establishment. France has a regular army of 408,000 men, without counting the National Guards, who number more than two millions; the regular army of Russia comprises 674,000 men; Austria has a regular army of 405,000 men: Prussia one of 121,000: Both Austria and Prussia have also an organization called the Landwher, similar to that of the National Guards in France. Great Britain, with her colonies, maintains a regular army of 104,000 men. These immense establishments, supported at immense cost, are deemed necessary in a time of peace-necessary to defend the Governments against their own people, and to defend both people and Governments against external attacks. It would be hard to say which danger is to be regarded as the greater—that of intestine war or that of outside aggression. people, however, pay the expenses of guarding against both. In nothing, perhaps, are the advantages of our condition as a people more strikingly ap-parent, than in the fact that neither internal nor external dangers require us to maintain more than a nominal standing army. Upon the European scale, indeed, our little force of some ten or twelve thousand men would be a mere squad. Scattered about in posts on the frontier, or occupying recruiting stations on the Atlantic seaboard, the troops of the United States are seldom seen at all by the great mass of our people. They constitute, in fact, less an army than the nucleus of an army-a nucleus, however, which is rich in military know-leaders, on an emergency, for a host. But the real military force of the United States, if occasion should call it forth, is to be found in the mass of the population, from which hundreds of thousands of men might be drawn, who, after a little discipline and service, would become excellent soldiers. We have always a mighty army in embryo-and so far from there being any difficulty in drawing forth battalions, regiments, and brigades, in the event of war, the late contest with Mexico shows that the difficulty is in selecting from those that offer .-Balt. SICKNESS ON SHIPBOARD.—The British ship Blanche, Captain Duckett, arrived at New Orleans on the 28th of March, with seventy or eighty persons on board sick with ship fever, including the captain and both mates. The vessel left Liverpool on the 22d of January with proud of her cakes and her preserves, and the Al-lens were at all times among her most welcome of February the fever made its appearance, and guests. There were but themselves this even-ing, and long was it remembered at the cot-at New Orleans. None of the crew escaped an assessor's book of the Sixth ward, for this year,

NEWS BY THIS MORNING'S MAILS.

In the following we give more ample accounts of the incidents furnished us by telegraph yesterday: CONNECTICUT ELECTION .- The returns from the State show the following results: Thomas H. Seymour (Dem.) is re-elected Governor by 1,000 plurality over Mr. Lafayette S. Foster, (Whig.)

To Congress two gentlemen from each party have been elected, viz:

Whigs. Dems. House -114 110 The Whigs thus have a small majority on joint ballot, which will secure them the United States Senator.

CONNECTICUT ELECTION.—New HAVEN, April 9.—Unexpected gains made by the Whigs se-cure them majorities in both branches of the Legislature. The Senate will stand 13 Whigs to 8 Democrats, and the House 114 Whigs to 110 Democrats. Every town has been heard from. This secures a Whig U. S. Senator and State officers, to be elected by the Legislature. Hartford, New London, New Haven, and Litchfield counties, elect Whig Sheriffs; Fairfield, Windham, Tolland, and Middlesex counties, Democratic Sheriffs. Boston, April 9 .- Massachusetts Election Hon. Charles Allen, Free-soiler, is elected to Congress in the fifth district by 250 majority. In the other districts there is no choice. R. Thompson, Whig, leads Palfrey, Free-soiler, in the fourth district, 200 votes.

PORTLAND, Me., April 9 .- Mayor's Election. The election for mayor yesterday resulted in no choice. Dow, Whig, received 1,184 votes; Shipley, Democrat, 972; scattering, 225. Five Whigs and one Democrat elected aldermen, and the council is nearly all Whig.

Boston, April 9 .- Sailing of the Canada. The Canada sailed for Liverpool to-day, with two hundred and ten passengers.

ALBANY, April 9 .- Mayor's Election .- At the city election yesterday, Eli Perry, Democrat, was elected Mayor, by 376 majority, and six Democratic to two Whig aldermen were chosen. SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 9 .- Hon. Daniel Webster .- Daniel Webster arrived here, and the people turned out en masse to receive him. Boston, April 9th .- Fugitive Slave Case .-The case of the negro Symmes begins to assume a more serious aspect, and a direct collision between the General and State Governments appears to be threatened. In the Massachusetts Senate to day, an order was passed by a vote of 25 to 7, appointing a committee to inquire "whether the freedom of any inhabitant of this Commonwealth is in danger through the remissness of any officer thereof, or if any law for the security of personal freedom had been violated by any officer of the city or State."

This movement is in consequence of the refusal of the sheriff to serve a writ of replevin upon the marshal, and also his refusal to serve criminal warrant upon Symmes for assaulting the officer who arrested him, both of which were designed to get Symmes out of the hands of the U.S. authorities. The committee is now in session. The governor has also directed the attorney general to consult with the sheriff relative to serving the writ of replevin upon the marshal. Immense placards are posted about, calling on the citizens and all opponents of slavery to assemble at the State-house, on Friday, and witness the State's disgrace in the delivery up of Symmes.

PENNSYLVANIA'S CALIFORNIA.-A joint committee of the Legislature of Pennsylvania esti-mate the value of the present annual yield of the coal mines of Pennsylvania, at $17,800,000, and the annual product of furnaces, forges and rolling-mills, at not less than $28,000,000. In about two and a half years-the time since the discovery of the gold mines of California—it is estimated that $95,000,000 have been taken out, or at the rate of $38,000,000 per annum. The coal and iron of Pennsylvania are therefore more productive than are California's

BEQUESTS OF THE LATE CHARLOTTE B. ARDEN. The late Charlotte B. Arden, of Morristown, N. J., who was the daughter of Rev. Benjamin Woodruff, of Westfield, N. J., and well known for her acts of benevolence during her life, bequeathed the following sums in her last will: Theological Seminary, Auburn, $2,000; American Board of Missions, $2,000; American Home Missions, $1,000; American Tract Society, $1 000 : American and Foreign Christian Union. $1,000; N. York Colonization Society, $1,000; American Bible Society, $1,000-Total $9,000. The residue of her estate, if any, to the American Board of Foreign Missions. [Newark (N. J.) Mercury, April 7.

"THE AMERICAN TELEGRAPH."-Such is the title of a new daily newspaper started in this city by Messrs. Connolly, Wimer, & McGill. It is a very neatly printed sheet, and its editorials, general and local, appear to be well indited, and have a sprightly off-handedness which is calculated to recommend them to public favor. The paper is issued at two cents a number, or ten cents a week, and gives indication that it will be an agreeable vehicle of news and instruction. We wish its conductors success.

LYNCHBURG AND TENNESSEE RAILROAD .- A fresh impetus has been lately given to this important work. Two thousand hands are now employed on the line, and the first sixty-one miles are expected to be opened this year. The Wytheville, is nearly 2d division, from Salem to all under contract, to be finished by the close of 1852. The 3d division, ending at the Tennessee line, will be put under contract in the fall, and is expected to be in operation before the end of 1853. By the time the whole is open the connexion between its eastern terminus and Richmond and Petersburg will be completed; and doubtless the whole line from the Tennessee boundary to Memphis. So that within three years there is every probability of an unbroken railway from Washington to the Mississippi being opened [Winchester Virginian.
